The moufflon roam, according to the season, in small or large groups throughout the vast Paphos Forest, which, after all, is their shelter.

It takes some 3-4 years for these to develop, and on reaching maturity,

The height of the adult male reaches one metre, and its weight stands

The moufflon have highly developed senses of sight, hearing and smell, uttered by the herd's adult males, which in their language obviously within and outside the Paphos Forest.

It is also suggesting to farmers affected birth to one, sometimes two lambs, whose first concern is to feed, them into adulthood, creating healthy offspring, and thus perpetuating the species.
